COUNTY LINE

Mr. and Mrs. Ryland Mann were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mann on Sunday.

Miss Jo Anne Zimmerman and Mr. Stephen Szczurak of Chicago spent a few days in the home of Miss Zimmerman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zymo Zimmerman.

We're sorry to report Grammy Lively, mother of Mr. Frank Lively, is back in the Raleigh-General Hospital in Berkley, West Va. We wish her a speedy recovery.

The County Line Homemakers Club met in the home of Mrs. Myrna Nash on Monday night. We had six members present and one visitor. We all enjoyed the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nash visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gobble and Mr. Herman Guill Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Nash and Wendy visited Mr. and Mrs. Armin Thomas and family Saturday night.

Mike Mann spent Saturday with Phillip Banton. It was Mike's seventh birthday.

We hope all the sick ones in the community will soon be well. It's a lot of colds and flu going around.

Our sympathy goes out to the family of Mrs. Faye Archer, who lost her father last Thursday.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Stephen Nash, who passed away 4 years ago, January 16, 1974.

Four eyars ago, January 18th
you were laid to rest.
To us it was so hard to bear but
God knows what's best.
Each day goes by we think of you, and we miss you so.
Some day we'll be together,
It's three of us now you know.
Sadly missed by Mama and
Daddy and sister, Tina

VA QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q - I failed to report for a scheduled physical examination and my VA disability compensation payments have been discontinued. How can I have them reinstated?

A - Write the nearest VA office and request another date for a physical examination.

Q - I am a disabled veteran. My wife is seriously ill and needs constant care by a nurse. Can VA help me with this nursing expense?

A - A veteran with service-connected disabilities rated at 50 per cent or more may receive an additional allowance for his wife when her condition is such that she requires regular aid and attendance.

Q - Will the Veterans Administration lend me money to buy a mobile home?

A - VA will guarantee up to 50 per cent of a loan to purchase a mobile home and the lot on which to locate it, but direct loans aren't made.

Q - Will the Veterans Administration pay for my transportation to a VA hospital?

A - These expenses are paid by VA in some circumstances. Contact the nearest VA office for details.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q - If my son enlists for military service now, will he be entitled to GI Bill education benefits?

A - Persons who initially enlist after Jan. 1, 1977, are eligible for veterans' education benefits if they contribute to the cost through monthly payroll deductions. VA will contribute $2 for every $1 the serviceman pays under the new GI Bill program.

Q - Can a veteran use his VA home loan guarantee benefit to buy rental property?

A - No. Veterans must certify they intend to live in the home they buy or build with VA-guaranted loan.

Q - Can arrangements for burial in a national cemetery be made prior to a veteran's death?

A - No. Burial arrangements can be made by relatives or friends of the veteran at the time of his death. They should contact the superintendent of the national cemetery at which burial is desired.

Q - At what age is a veteran presumed to be totally disabled for purposes of qualifying for nonservice-connected VA pension?

A - Total disability is presumed at age 65, but you must still meet other eligibility requirements to qualify for VA pension. Check with your nearest VA office for details.

New Guide To Carpets

Choosing the right carpet can be confusing. There are many questions concerning texture, design, fabric, price, and, just as important is the matter of performance. In other words, what kind of job will the carpet do once it's installed? Is it the right quality for the right room?

One of the country's largest carpet manufacturers, Bigelow-Sanford, has produced a small booklet that provides valuable tips in selecting carpet according to the amount of use it will receive.

Consumers should evaluate three critical factors when considering carpet performance: 1) How much traffic, generally, does the home receive? 2) How often will the carpet be cleaned? 3) Which are the heavyest traffic areas?

Once those questions have been answered, you have a guide to selecting the proper grade of carpet. As a further help, Bigelow labels its carpet according to performance: light, moderate, general and heavy.

The booklet provides guidelines on how color and pattern relate to carpet performance and recommends the use of chemical soil retardants, such as Scotchgard.

For a free copy, visit a Bigelow carpet dealer or write: Bigelow-Sanford Inc., Dept. of Consumer Information, P.O. Box 3089, Greenville, S.C. 29602.

In addition to this, the Congressman said, taxes derived by local, state and Federal governments from tobacco amount to nearly $6 billion annually and the total value of all aspects of the tobacco industry to the American economy is "incalculable".

Daniel said he will oppose "with every means possible" the proposal to increase tobacco excise taxes "to confiscatory levels" and sharply denounced Califano's proposed $23,000,000 anti-smoking campaign. He said that if the HEW Secretary "can succeed in establishing a special program to combat smoking, he will soon have a multiplicity of campaigns against whatever products he chooses". The cost of such campaigns, Daniel contended, "must be borne by the same taxpayers who may highly resent such intrusion in their personal lives".

The Congressman assailed the "ineptness of those government officials who are striking out at tobacco, by speeches and press releases and who turn a deaf ear to the economic consequences of their actions at a time when the government should be concerned about balancing the budget and keeping people working".

Daniel Attacks HEW Secretary

DANVILLE- Fifth District Congressman Dan Daniel today sharply attacked HEW Secretary Joseph Califano's "vindictive campaign" against the tobacco industry.

As he prepared to return to Washington for the opening of the second session of the 95th Congress, Daniel charged the HEW Secretary with "headline hunting and attempting to control the personal habits of Americans".

The Congressman asserted that although the government has a responsibility to "warn its citizens on dangerous products when it has irrefutable proof", the statements made by Califano fail to qualify as convincing evidence.

Daniel said he has never smoked himself, "but I defend vigorously the rights of others to do so". He added that many of those in the forefront of the anti-smoking campaign "profess a belief in personal liberties on other issues but are blind to basic constitutional rights of tobacco users, growers and manufacturers to equal protection of the laws".

The Virginia Congressman, who represents the state's biggest tobacco growing area, pointed out that in 1976 the tobacco crop in Virginia was a $170,000,000 benefit to the state. The cigarettes and other manufactured products produced in Virginia are valued in excess of that figure.

He said that in the same year through the Port of Norfolk was shipped $473 million in tobacco leaf and $296 million in cigarettes. The economic benefit to Virginia from the tobacco industry would be considerably more than $2,000,000,000 annually, he said.

Life Offers New Experiences

RICHMOND - For Catherine Shepard Baber, 14, who lives in Cumberland, life is offering new experiences.

She is one of a number of teenagers who have come to Richmond for the annual session of the General Assembly. She is not one of the pages who work in the General Assembly. Still, she enjoys many of the privileges and even shares their living quarters at the Hotel John Marshall, Catherine, who serves as a special messenger, was recommended to the Virginia State Crime Commission by Delegate Claude W. Anderson of Buckingham. He represents the 27th House District which includes Appomattox, Cumberland, Amelia and Prince Edward Counties. Delegate Anderson is a member of the Crime Commission and is Chairman of its subcommittee studying compensation of law enforcement officers.

As a special messenger for the Crime Commission, Catherine, several times daily, visits the State Capitol where she is able to sit in the gallery and observe the legislative process; contacts the various members of the Senate and the House of Delegates to deliver or pickup various legislation and mail involving work of the Crime Commission and the entire Criminal Justice System.

"Oh Boy", she said after one cold working day, "I met six legislators today". That was a typical day.

Catherine, a five-foot fourinch, 118-pound brunette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baber of Double Tree Farm, Cumberland. Her father is the Commonwealth Attorney of Cumberland County. She has an older brother, Andy, 16, and a younger sister, Courtenay, age 12.

Catherine is finding her stay in Richmond a lot different from life on the farm where she keeps active helping with the Hereford cattle, six horses and other animals that they have. The horses are hunters and jumpers.

Catherine is a very active individual. She began riding the horses when she was nine and has collected a number of Blue ribbons for first place in hunter shows at Deep Run, Manakin, Amelia, Keswick and in North Carolina.

She also plays the piano and enjoys tennis, which she began playing last summer.

A ninth grade student at Huguenot Academy, she is a member of the girls' basketball team and plays guard. She also enjoys watching college basketball on television.

Despite her duties, she has several hours daily to study while in Richmond. She said she finds science and mathematics her hardest subjects. She is hopeful of either attending Meredith or Mary Baldwin college.

While Catherine finds her work "a lot of fun", she said she also finds it educational. "Just working with some of the people is an education in itself. They are keen. And each time I go into the General Assembly I heard words used that are new to me. So, I am hopeful of building a new vocabulary", she explained.

Catherine was assigned by Lewis W. Hurst, Executive Director of the Crime Commission, to work directly under Corrine Abbitt, who is the Commission's head analyst. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watkins Abbitt of Appomattox. Her father was formerly a member of the Congress. Also working closely with Ms. Abbitt and Catherine is Mrs. Patrice Snoddy Walls, daughter of Judge and Mrs. John R. Snoddy of Dillwyn.

Eating Well

Arsenic - An Essential Nutrient

Many scientists are now trying to increase the number of known nutrients. The Fall publication of Nutrition Notes mentions for example that "arsenic is now on its way to being recognized as another essential element." Recent work with animals has shown that various abnormalities show up when they are deprived of arsenic. Scientists in Germany found that when goats and pigs were given a diet lacking in arsenic they did not grow as large, there was less fertility, fewer live births and they did not live as long as the animals that received arsenic in their diets.

This is not to say that people should start to add arsenic to their foods. Definitely not. In quantities above trace levels it is a deadly poison. The study does emphasize the fact that not all nutrients are known, and also that not everything is known about the nutrients that have already been discovered.

At present there are 103 elements. Only 17 trace elements have been shown to be necessary for animals. In recent years tin, nickel, vanadium, silicon and arsenic have been added. Selecting a variety of foods from the Basic Four Food Groups will provide a person with the known nutrients as well as those that are unknown.

The Basic Four Food Groups includes: the Milk Group (teenagers need four cups, children three to four cups and adults two cups), the Meat Group (at least two servings), the Vegetable and Fruit Group (four or more servings), and the Bread and Cereal Group (four or more servings).
